ORCiD

Distinguish yourself and connect you to your research activities

- Helps with career progression – funders, institutions & societies can easily identify you and your research.
- Spend more time conducting research – and less time reporting on past activities.
- Showcases work – clearly links your professional activities back to you.

Did you know?

Wiley allows you to create an ORCID iD during the submission process, which is then displayed on your article in Wiley Online Library.

Wiley and ORCID

Connecting research and researchers
Increasing discoverability of published work

Linking

Wiley captures ORCID IDs during the submission process and shares the information with CrossRef.

Representing

The ORCID Executive Board has representatives from all leading publishers, including Wiley.

Promoting

Wiley runs marketing campaigns to encourage ORCID registration among authors.

299 A pilot promotion to Wiley ScholarOne Manuscript authors resulted in 299 average weekly ORCID registrations across 6 journals, an increase from 6 average weekly registrations before the campaign.

ORCID

Distinguish yourself with ORCID

ORCID iD is a unique and persistent identifier that distinguishes you from every other researcher and connects you to your research activities, so you always get the credit for your work. Find out more.

- Funders, institutions, and societies can easily identify you and your research
- You don't waste time entering repetitive data when reporting on your past activities
- Your professional activities are clearly linked back to you
- You can easily comply with funder mandates

Most of Wiley's journal submission sites allow you to create an ORCID iD and associate it with your account.

How to distinguish yourself with ORCID

Have you ever been asked to list your work? The following scenarios possibly sound familiar... • Your funding organization wants to review your past work before making an award • Your institution needs you to provide a list of work before your promotion review • Potential collaborators are struggling to find if you're the correct person for their...

Author or Submitting Agent

Select the first option listed for the "Author or Submitting Agent" question to indicate that you are one of the authors on the paper - regardless of whether you are the main author or a co-author. Select the second option if you are NOT an author on the paper but are submitting on behalf of one of the authors, for example if you are the author's assistant or secretary.

Co-Authors

Add your co-authors using the email search below. If your co-authors do not already have an account please enter their details to create them as a new author.

Corresponding Author

Please make sure you have correctly selected the Corresponding Author, as it appears on the manuscript, by selecting "Assign as Corresponding Author" from the dropdown menu in the "Actions" column.

VERY IMPORTANT: PLEASE ENSURE YOU HAVE UPLOADED ALL YOUR CO-AUTHORS NAMES AND DETAILS FROM THE MANUSCRIPT. After you've added all co-authors, please re-sequence the author order to match the order in which they appear on the printed manuscript cover either by dragging them to the desired position using the double arrow icon on the left side of the table, or by using the drop-down number list next to each author.

When you are finished, click "Save and Continue".

Implementation of ORCID at Wiley

Wiley strongly encourages authors to create an ORCID iD and associate it with their manuscript when they submit to Wiley journals.

As of December 2015, Wiley had over 15,000 ORCID identifiers in use for journal article submissions.

Wiley submission and peer review systems facilitate the recording and validation of ORCID iDs on manuscript submission across our journals.

The Wiley logo is a circular emblem. It features a black center with the word "WILEY" in white, uppercase letters. This center is surrounded by a purple ring with a white arrow pointing clockwise. The entire logo is set against a background of white dotted lines forming a circle.The ORCID logo consists of the word "ORCID" in a sans-serif font. The letters "O", "R", "C", and "I" are in grey, while the letter "D" is in a vibrant green color.The Wiley logo is the word "WILEY" in a bold, black, serif font.

Wiley's publishing partners supporting ORCID

- AGU has strongly highlighted to authors the many benefits of having an ORCID
- The feedback from their community is positive for AGU's leadership on this important initiative
- This requirement has not impacted submissions
- EMBO see the universal adoption of digital name identifiers to aid name disambiguation as essential in a global, growing research landscape.
- Authors add ORCID when submitting the first revised version of their manuscript.

Publication of ORCiDs in Wiley Journals

Once an article is accepted for publication, the ORCID iD collected at submission are published along with the article on Wiley Online library

The screenshot displays two examples of Wiley Online Library article pages. The left page is from the Journal of Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Nursing (ISPN), featuring the article "Diagnosis in Young Children: How a Father's Perceptions of Mental Health Change" by Marian Morris MPH, RN. A callout box highlights her ORCID iD (0000-0001-9185-3807) and contact information. The right page is from THE EMBO JOURNAL, featuring the article "Rac1-Rab11-FIP3 regulatory hub vesicle traffic with actin remodeling activation" by Jérôme Bouchet, Iratxe del Río-Iñiguez, Rémi Lassus, Céline Cuhe, Anne Danckaert, Mary W McCaffrey, Vincenzo Di Bartolo, and Andrés Alcover. A callout box highlights the ORCID iD for Andrés Alcover and provides links to find him on Google Scholar, PubMed, and the Wiley site.

Future Plans

Wiley will continue to encourage author ORCID registration through engaging with our society partners and educating authors directly.

To significantly increase the number of Wiley article submissions with ORCID iDs:

- improving author recognition and reward
- helping authors comply with funder mandates
